Steve Thinks Burglar Must Have Been Pupule

Over on Hawaii, Val Stevenson, formerly of the Maui News, now editor of the Hawaii Herald, waxes facetious about a burglar who visited his home and that of Editor George Henshall of the Hilo Tribune. Stevenson says in the Herald that a burglar who hopes to find anything in the way of loose cash around a newspaper man's premises must be "nutty."

He says that he regrets the burglar was scared away from his place, as the burglar might have some money in his possession, intimating that he would have confiscated the coin. This may be in the nature of a warning to the burglar as to what he can expect if he calls again.

At Editor Henshall's place, the burglar attempted to enter through an open window, but departed hurriedly when he was discovered by Mrs. Henshall, who promptly screamed.

Sheriff Pua has taken measurements of the burglar's foot-prints and is now endeavoring to fit them to somebody.
